Declaration of Disclosure

The application form you submitted for admission to the Georgia State University College of Law includes the following questions, among others:

21. Have you ever been expelled, suspended, or placed on academic probation or discipline by any school, college, trade or professional organization for academic reasons or conduct code violation?

22. Are you aware of any circumstances in your background that would or might prohibit you from gaining admission to the practice of law?

23. Excluding parking violations, have you ever been detained, arrested, formally accused, cited or prosecuted for the violation of any law? NOTE: You must disclose each instance even though the charges may have been dismissed or you were acquitted or allowed to plead nolo contendere or adjournment was withheld or a conviction was reversed, set aside or vacated or the record sealed or expunged and regardless of whether you have been told you need not disclose any such instance. Such instances are not necessarily disqualifying. All circumstances are carefully considered by the Admissions Committee.

At the end of your application, you confirmed, in writing or electronically, that you read, understood and agreed with the following statement.

I certify that the information provided on this application is true, to the best of my knowledge, and I understand that any omission or misrepresentation of facts or failure to furnish information will automatically invalidate consideration of this application and/or acceptance to Georgia State University. I also certify that the personal statement is original and my own work. Applicants admitted based on applications containing misrepresentations may be disciplined under the Honor Code of the College of Law, and reported to the Law School Admission Council Misconduct and Irregularities Subcommittee. I agree to obtain a copy of the Honor Code and abide by the rules and regulations. I understand the receipt of a law degree does not entitle one to be admitted to the bar, and it is incumbent upon the applicant to review the fitness requirements and other local rules governing admission to the practice of law. Georgia’s rules may be found at: http://www.gabaradmissions.org.

Complete Part A or B, but not both. You must return the completed document to the College of Law Admissions Office.
Part A

The responses I have provided to all questions on my application for admission (and any previously submitted amendments thereto) to the Georgia State University College of Law are fully accurate and complete.  (NOTE: If you are in doubt as to what you disclosed on your application, ask the Director of Admissions or the Registrar to allow you to inspect it before you complete this form.)

Part B

I request permission to amend my application (and any previously submitted amendments thereto), as stated below.  The College of Law has made no representations to me as to what actions, if any, it may take as a result of this post-admission disclosure.  I understand that some of the factors the College of Law takes into account in deciding what actions, if any, to take regarding post-admission disclosures are the date and seriousness of any offenses, post-occurrence behavior and the amount of time that elapses between one’s application and one’s request to amend.  I understand that Georgia’s Office of Bar Admissions strongly encourages beginning law students to correct any inaccuracies on their applications now.  Delay in amending may postpone or prevent fitness certification, a prerequisite to taking the Georgia bar exam.
